

Serving those who serve.

25
YEAR
ANNIVERSARY

PROVIDING SERVICES TO OTHERS nearly always comes at a price from the giver. For the organizations dedicated to giving back in the Sarasota area, costly overhead for facility and maintenance can greatly limit their outreach potential. Recognizing the need to support local non-profits, Dr. Kay Glasser made it her mission to deliver health and human services in a more efficient way. Tireless work coupled with an extraordinary gift by the Schoenbaum Family brought her vision of a community of caring to life. Now in its 25th year, The Glasser Schoenbaum Human Services Center's (GSHSC) mission of service supports area organizations by housing their offices for a minimal rate and allowing their focus, resources and energy to benefit people. As a "campus of caring", GSHSC provides centralized access to 19 diverse non-profit organizations in one location, conveniently accessible by public transportation. A revolutionary model for both the organizations housed on their campus and individuals seeking help, GSHSC provides the purest form of assistance by meeting real needs for real people, whether they are helping or being helped. By serving the organizations that serve others, local heroes are able to do more, make a bigger impact and foster a stronger community for all.
